‘Nothing more and nothing less than to give CAMBRIDGE a hotel that matches the city’s heart and style — ambitious, beautiful, and full of life.

The UNIVERSITY ARMS

1891

The UNIVERSITY ARMS is a unique collaboration between the architect JOHN SIMPSON and the interior designer MARTIN BRUDNIZKI. It’s the fulfilment of a journey; from modest roots to a world-class hotel. The transformation echoing the evolution of a Fenland market town into a globally important gateway.

Situated fifty miles north of LONDON, on the banks of the River Cam, lies one of England’s most iconic cities — just 45 minutes by train from the capital.

*“Mother Nature sets the tone.
It’s why I hope you will keep coming back. For Norfolk lobster with chestnut butter and game pies in winter, for the scent of wild garlic as spring begins.”*

TRISTAN WELCH
CHEF AT PARKER'S TAVERN

With the opening of Parker's Tavern, he has returned home to Cambridge to cook the classics of his roots. Beneath the elegant surface bubbles an English eccentric.

Our chef sources not simply by season, but by what's best each day. He doesn't just rely on local markets, but on produce from farmers he knows by name.

A TIMELESS MEETING PLACE

Unpretentious sophistication, and excellent value from a thoughtfully selected Cambridge cellar.

As an old coaching inn, Parker's Tavern has been a meeting place for over a hundred years. Then and now, it was a bustling tavern for conversations between travellers enjoyed over good, stiff drinks. A timeless appeal, with a modern twist.

THE BAR

THE BOISTEROUS LEGACY OF A BUSTLING COACHING INN, THE CULTURED REFINEMENT OF AN ARTIST'S SALON.

Parker's Tavern marks a homecoming. A return to good, unpretentious British cooking. No fuss. No froth.

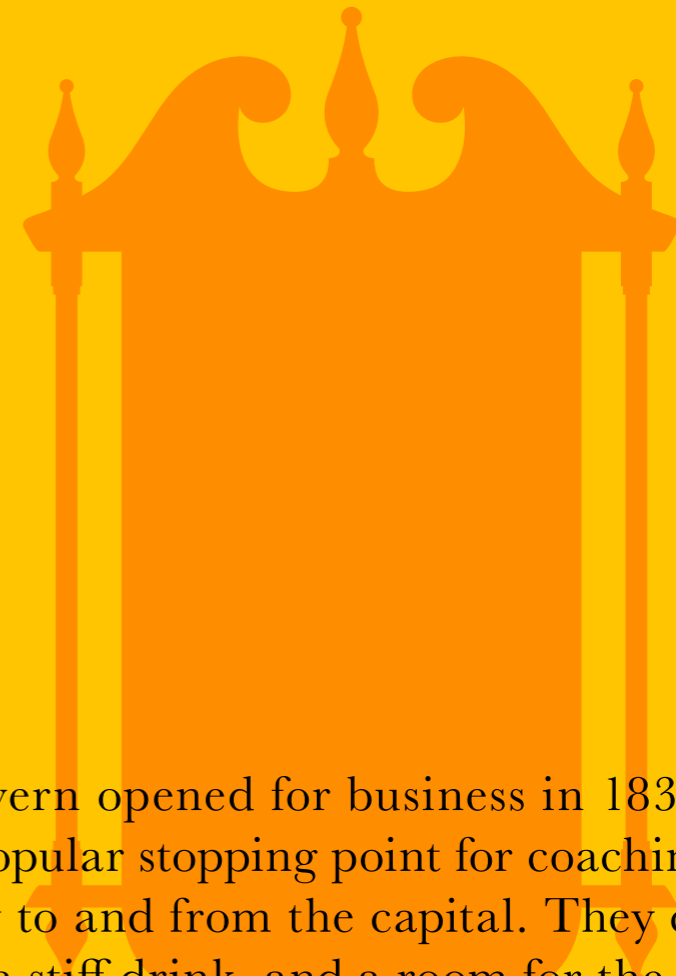

Easygoing British classics with an eccentric twist. It's why you'll come back for another pass from the bon-bon trolley, or dollop of Burnt Cream.

THE RESTAURANT

PARKER'S TAVERN IS A QUINTESSENTIALLY ENGLISH
BRASSERIE OCCUPYING A FORMER COACHING INN.

Parker's Tavern opened for business in 1834, and swiftly became a popular stopping point for coaching passengers on their way to and from the capital. They came for good company, a stiff drink, and a room for the night in the University Arms.

In 2018, Parker's Tavern will reopen after a phenomenal reinvention. The intention? Nothing more and nothing less than to give Cambridge a restaurant that matches the city's heart and style — intelligent, ambitious, beautiful, a locus of conversation and food to delight.
